

Washoe lands proposal is insulting

It is a good thing that election season is around the corner — after reading the new Washoe County proposed lands bill, we should vote some of the Washoe County commissioners out of office.

The release of 400,000-plus acres of Wilderness Study Area is tantamount to stealing our heritage from us, and is totally unacceptable. Did they actually think that their constituents are so stupid that we wouldn't notice they made the disposal boundary even bigger? Why are they caving to the interests of a few Californians?

I hope the anti-public lands commissioners are fine-tuning their resumes, because if they don't listen to the voters of Washoe County, they might be out of jobs. I support wilderness, open space, wildlife, and Nevada values — and I vote.
